Breaking bread for Turkey Tuesday

The annual Turkey Tuesday feast was scheduled to take place Tuesday night at the Locke's Mills Legion Hall. On Monday 10 volunteers gathered at Kate and Ron Carroll's house in Bethel to prepare some of the food, all of which is donated. They prepped 100 pounds of potatoes and about 20 pounds each of onions and celery. Here, from left, Jill Kenney, Kathi Burke, Peter Kenney, Loraine Duclos, Kate Carroll, and Lauri Herron break apart bread and rolls to be used in the stuffing. Also helping were Jim Blair, Charlie Lowe, Angie Carroll, and Ron Carroll. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

Garden center proposed for Locke's Mills

By ALISON ALOISIO

A Bethel couple has applied to the Greenwood Planning Board to re-open the former Round Pond Corner Store as a retail garden center, the "Local Hub."

Nick and Janet Bartlett are proposing to lease the building from owner Chris Marshall, according to the application before the board.

The garden center would focus on local foods, and carry organic and heirloom seed stock, as well as organic soils and fertilizers. "We will strive to fill the cooler with local produce and local food, specialty beer and maybe local wine," the Bartletts wrote in the application.

In the future, listed as a "Phase 2," the Bartletts describe plans for "re-certifying the kitchen and offering to-go items. This will include a licensed mobile vendor selling fresh baked wood fired oven pizzas."

Hours are proposed initially as 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesdays through Sundays, but could be subject to change, especially if the kitchen is operated.

At its Nov. 5 meeting, the Planning Board found the Bartletts' application complete, pending the receipt of paperwork from the Fire Department and Marshall, according to Town Manager Kim Sparks.

The application is expected to be considered at the Dec. 3 board meeting.

"Found Treasures" features the old but usable

By ALISON ALOISIO

"I always wanted a shop," said Linda Couture, who recently opened "Found Treasures" in Philbrook Place in Bethel. "I've been collecting things for years."

Couture offers a wide variety of goods, old and new. The "old" includes antiques and collectibles - but Couture's focus is, she said, on "things that people can actually use."

There are, for example, kitchen tools from the 1940s and '50s.

"Cookie cutters are a favorite," she said.

Others include a chopper shaped to be used inside a bowl, beater spoons, crank egg beaters and vegetable peelers in hard-to-find handle colors.

"Red and green are the most common," she said. "Pink and blue are harder to find."

She also offers 50- and 60-year old napkins and linens - many of which have never been used.

Couture finds the items in antique shops, flea markets and occasionally online.

"I usually like to see them in person," she said.

In some cases, people give her things.

THIS ROUND WENT TO THE CROWS
Two crows who apparently consider upper Main Street in Bethel their territory took exception recently when a young red-tailed hawk began circling in the area. The crows repeatedly dove - and cawed - at the hawk for several minutes, but the silent young bird continued to circle. The persistence of the two smaller birds eventually paid off, and the hawk went on its way. Here, one of the crows approaches from behind.

With passage of same-sex marriage, hope for more local wedding business

By ALISON ALOISIO

It didn't take long after Maine voters approved same-sex marriage Nov. 6 for the economic effect to be felt in the Bethel area.

"I am already working with a couple of guys that have been partners for 40 years and are planning a wedding next summer at their camp on the lake in Waterford," said Steve Etheridge, owner of Rooster's Roadhouse in Bethel.

"They are looking for locations for a small wedding reception, and have asked Rooster's to put a proposal together for them. There is no question in my mind that this opens an entirely new market for the restaurant and hospitality-related businesses, and we welcome the opportunities."

With Maine one of less than a dozen states with laws allowing same-sex marriage, other area businesses that provide wedding-related services are also hopeful for a boost.

Wedding officiant Ellie Andrews is putting out her message: "I'm sending letters to area town clerks that I am excited about doing same-sex weddings," she said. "Once some couples get married, I think others will realize it's OK and we are here to support them."

The Bethel Inn and Sunday River Ski Resort, which both host weddings and receptions, also plan a push.

"We're definitely anticipating more business,"

SAD 44 directors OK new Telstar energy loan proposal for $600,000+

By ALISON ALOISIO

The SAD 44 School Board last week approved the submission of a loan proposal to possibly fund an estimated $600,000-$900,000 alternative/renewable energy project for the Telstar complex.

The proposal for a Qualified School Construction Bond does not commit the district to take the loan, but would determine if the district is eligible for it, according to Supt. Dave Murphy.

The project would be separate from the $2.5 million energy/ventilation upgrade work approved by SAD 44 voters Nov. 6, but would be closely associated with it, he said. The possibility of applying for an additional loan for a wood boiler was discussed by the board before the Nov. 6 vote.

An alternative system like a wood boiler would mean "immediate, significant savings," Murphy told the board last week.

The Bethel Town Office recently installed a wood pellet boiler, which is estimated to cut its energy costs in half.

Directors had considered earlier this fall bypassing the near-0 percent $1.3 million loan for the $2.5 million project in order to apply for a larger package that would in-

Snowsports program for children with autism comes to Mt. Abram

A Maine snowsports program designed to benefit children with autism and their families will offer services at Mt. Abram this winter, according to a press release from Spurwink, a nonprofit organization that provides mental health, education, and residential services for children, adolescents, adults, and families.

With autism diagnoses increasing across the country, many parents are struggling to find recreational activities that meet the needs of the whole family, the release said. In northern New England, those caring for loved ones with autism are discovering that snowsports, such as skiing and snowboarding, can be beneficial to children with autism, as well as their siblings and parents.

Individuals with autism often experience difficulty with movement and can benefit from exercise. Skiing and snowboarding stimulate the body's motor system, providing much-needed sensory input that can help with balance and motion impairments, joint problems—even difficulty starting and stopping actions. A family member with autism can also enjoy a day on the slopes along with everyone else.

Last year in collaboration with Sugarloaf, Spruce Point on the Slopes, a Spurwink program, launched an effort to support individuals with autism who were enrolled in ski school lessons.

Spruce Point provides specialized services to individuals with autism. This winter Spruce Point is expanding and teaming up with Mt. Abram to pro-

DOG PARK QUESTIONS

To the Editor:

Articles have been written on the proposed Bethel Dog Park, but we haven't seen anything on issues our selectmen may want to consider before giving their final okay for this project. Why is this?

We've heard this is not a town project, yet the surveyor's paperwork (done by Gary Inman) says "Proposed Bethel Dog Park, Town of Bethel Project." What this tells us is that it sounds like this is a project for the Town of Bethel. Have the Selectmen considered the following?

1. Is the Town of Bethel going to maintain this proposed dog park?

2. Who is going to take care of all the fecal waste? Summer and winter? What are the plans for disposal?

3. Who is going to snow blow a path in the winter to get to the park? Or is this just a three season park?

4. Are we, the taxpayers, involved in this endeavor? The proposed park is on property owned by the town. Does this make us liable? Bear with me here...

5. Who is going to be the responsible party for dog fights? Will the town be responsible for the veterinary bills resulting from the dog fights, dog bites, or the doctors' bills that may be incurred when a dog may bite an adult or child?

The proposed Dog Park is infringing on a state funded snowmobile trail, maintained by local groomers. The proposed dog park pushes the trail off to one side into a swampy, muddy terrain. With a dog fence up, what consideration has been given for the trail groomers to be able to adequately groom the trails due to groomer width? Has anyone talked to the state groomers on this? This very important trail head leads to Newry, Andover, Rumford, Upton, Rangeley, etc. It allows snowmobilers to leave Bethel and go all the way to northern New Hampshire and even into Canada if they wish. This is a high-volume trail and it is going to be very noisy for the animals when snowmobilers go by. We would think dog owners might fear what the dogs will do when these machines go by. We can see it happening. "You have to move your trail because it is scaring our dogs."

Snowmobiling is the number one tourist attraction in Maine, ahead of skiing. Many businesses such as Mallard Mart, Pat's Pizza, C.N. Brown, Irving, Dunkin' Donuts, Glidden's Foodliner, area inns and restaurants benefit from this winter business. Do you want to lose this business the town enjoys in the winter because this trail may be in jeopardy?

Bethel is known for its walking/biking/hiking trails. We have many, many back roads and dirt roads that people can walk their dogs on. Why do we need a dog park in this area? We are not against dog parks in the cities where there is a need, but with the many avenues we have in and around the town for people to walk their dogs, is a dog park really necessary? We are not against dog parks at all - just not in this proposed area and have questions as to where the burden lies. Has anyone checked into Ethel Bisbee property? Or talked to Ma-hoosuc Land Trust about possibilities there?

This is not a good fit for town property and it is not a good fit for snowmobilers and the trail this proposed park will be located by. And, has anyone discussed this with the abutters who reside in and around this property?

David Crockett, President, Bethel Snow Twisters
Robert Lowell, Trail Groomer

REMEMBERING ANNIE HASTINGS

To the Editor:

Bethel has lost one of its most familiar figures this week with the passing of Annie MacKinnon Hastings, a longtime resident, who died on Nov. 16, 2012.

She was born in Mexico, Maine, in 1920, the daughter of Colin and Lillian Decker MacKinnon, attended local schools and graduated from Mexico High School in 1938.

After graduation, she worked as a paper sorter at the Oxford Paper Company in Rumford before enrolling at the Rumford Community Hospital School of Nursing, from which she graduated in 1944. Prior to her marriage to attorney Henry H. Hastings in 1948, she worked as a nurse at the Rumford Community Hospital. She and her husband adopted two children, Cindy and Steve. After her husband died in 1968, she returned to nursing, retiring in 1986. Annie is survived by her two children and two grandchildren.

Very active in the community, she served in the Rumford Hospital Auxiliary, as a Sunday School teacher at the West Parish Congregational Church, a Scout leader, a member of the Bethel Health Council, and Worthy Matron of Purity Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star.

A life member of the Bethel Historical Society since 1977, Annie was long a contributor of food for society events, a "stalwart" of the society's "Mailing Group," a "fixture" at the annual St. Never's Day Sale for years, and a consistently generous financial supporter of the organization.

All who knew her will certainly miss her kindness, humor and keen memories of the past!

MORE ON ADDISON BEAN

To the Editor:

The "Our Back Pages" column in the Oct. 18 Bethel Citizen included the item - "100 years ago: Death Addison S. Bean." As this is the 150th Anniversary of the Civil War along with the recent Veterans' Day, it is appropriate to provide some background on Addison S. Bean.

He was born in Newry. His father was a widower with six small sons, so at the age of four Addison went to live with the family of Ashley Paine in Mason.

In the summer of 1861 the 65th New York Volunteer Infantry Regiment (1st U.S. Chasseurs) was recruiting in New England and Addison enlisted. In August the Regiment left New York for the defense of Washington, D.C. While there, Addison and his regiment participated in reviews by President Lincoln. After leaving Washington the 65th New York Regiment was at almost every major battle fought by the Army of the Potomac. Addison was with the Regiment through the Peninsular Campaign, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and General Grant's Overland Campaign. He also had guard duty at the prisoner of war camp on Johnson's Island near Sandusky, Ohio.

Addison was mustered out of the 65th New York Regiment in September 1864 and he re-enlisted in the U.S. Veteran Volunteers where he served until February 1866. He then returned to Mason, bought a farm, and got married. His letters home to his adopted family are in the Bean Letters Collection at the Bethel Historical Society.

OUTING CLUB THANKS

To the Editor:

Thanks so much to Gould Academy for use of its facility and to the huge group of volunteers that made the 32nd Annual Bethel Outing Club Ski Sale a success.

This event is the club's big fundraiser; the funds support Nordic skiing programs in the area schools and programs which foster outdoor activity in the community. The sale helps folks find and sell affordable winter sports equipment.

It couldn't have happened without these people: Doug Alford, Nancy Babcock, Carla Boyle-Wight, David Walker, Chris Barstow, Bethel Kitchen Design for the generous use of its truck, Ian & Laura Blair, Jeremy Blazar, the Bohrs for storing our equipment all these years, Charlie Casey, Brad Clarke, Mike Cooper, Tom DeLuca, Landon Fake, Linda Gallagher, Jonathan & Kate Goldberg, Robin Gorrell, Gould Academy groups: injured athletes, Nordic, Mountain Biking, Outing Club, and Yearbook Committee, Norm Greenberg & Traci Thayer, Brooke Hallett, Chris Hayward, Lauren Head, Jeff Hershberger, Lorrie & Mike Hoeh, Shanta Hoff, Gary Inman, Wade & Beth Kavanaugh, Pat Kellner, Heather Kellogg, Nick Kline, Mahoosuc Mountain Rescue Team, Mahoosuc Realty for generous use of its truck, Ann Marie Mahar, Merritt Maxim, Karen McElroy, Judy O'Neil, Jeff and Pattie Parsons, Callie Pecunies, Bruce & Suzanne Pierce, Jim & Julia Reuter, Joyce Roma, Leslie Rowse, Julie Schubert, Peter Schwarz, Kristen Seib, Peter Shattenberg, Brett Shifrin, Kirk & Martha Siegel, Peter & Sarah Southam, Ann Speth, Telstar High School Alpine and Nordic Ski Teams, Telstar Middle School Nordic Ski Team, Sarah Weaver, Beth Weisberger, Karen Wilson and Doug Zinchuk. Thank you to anyone I may have missed - there were so many volunteers who jumped in and helped and it is much appreciated.

Thanks to all in the community who shopped; see you next year-always the last Friday and Saturday of October!

'How do you like the climate?'

The first night it is necessary to make a furnace fire is officially the beginning of autumn. Often warm nights follow and days when you can run about scantily clad but the temper of living has changed. No more is life a love affair with the outdoor world. Activities are half outside, half inside, but the essential of shelter is now always hovering over your shoulder. Then comes a night in early November when several inches of snow fall. We always say that of course this will melt and by noon it has; too early for snow to stay on the ground. (Though once, in nineteen sixty-eight, a nor'easter came on the eighth of November. Within nine days four more storms followed and we were buried for the rest of the year.)

Sometimes we have warning that a definite cold is coming. The gray mare comes to the gate in late afternoon and calls imperiously to be taken in. We carry her usual hay to the field. She eats it, and calls again for us to come. Even though no signs of snow or cold are in evidence, we take her in, put extra wood in the furnace at bedtime, and next morning the snow is here.

One year we did not need any warning. The sun did not come out all day, the mercury fell. Before B.B. came home I decided to put the hay and grain for the beasts in their boxes instead of in the field outside. They were waiting impatiently at the gate. As soon as they heard the truck rattling up the road, they started calling. We took them up, and always stood for a few minutes in the barn listening to their contented munching. We are never completely ready for winter. "The paper isn't around the underpinning yet," says B.B., "and I haven't put away the porch furniture, but the furnace wood is all in the cellar." "And I haven't put the mounds of dirt around the rose bushes yet," say I.

SAVAGE CHARGE OUTDATED-A Sun Media story that appeared in last week's Citizen about charges filed against Rick Savage contained an outdated criminal charge. According to Oxford County court clerks, a charge of terrorizing stemming from an incident outside the Bethel Town Office last May was a "no complaint," meaning the district attorney decided not to pursue that charge. The information was incorrectly provided to Sun Media.

"If someone doesn't know what to do with something, people say, 'Give it to Linda, she'll use it.'"

Often, she said, "I turn it into something else."

An example of a refurbished item is a small table lamp. It came decorated with a bow made of heavy wire and a large plastic flower.

Linda took off the bow and flower and covered the shade with fabric.

She then found a rusty decorative heart, which she sanded down. She mixed some paint to match that on the lamp and painted the heart.

Couture also draws on modern-day local craft-people to stock her shop.

Unusually-shaped cedar boxes, made in Newry, make good storage containers for photos or items that will be protected from insects by the cedar scent, she said.

Also made in Rumford are signs crafted from boards made to look old or weathered.

Couture also offers hand-made, all-natural soaps from Andover, maple syrup from Sumner and jams and jellies from Upton.

In the future she plans to hold crafting workshops in a room adjacent to the store. Early offerings will likely include scrapbooking and cardmaking.

Found Treasures is open Tuesday through Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. (She is closed over Thanksgiving but will re-open Friday.)

vide the same service.

Benjamin Kahrl, father of six-year-old Lily, remembers the look on his daughter's face when she skied for the first time. "She absolutely loved it," he said. "For our family, Spruce Point on the Slopes has meant being able to take a vacation together. In the past, we had to plan separate activities that were appropriate for each child. Now, we can do these things together."

As part of the program a Spruce Point specialist stays with the child throughout the entire lesson. The specialists provide snowsports coaches with insights on how individuals with autism communicate, what their sensory issues are, what motor planning difficulties they may have, and how they relate to others.

Spruce Point specialists have backgrounds in special education, speech and language therapy, social work, or direct care, and many come with years of experience aiding individuals with autism.

The Spruce Point program allows families to drop their children off at ski school and feel confident they will be understood, well cared for, and integrated within the group.

"Children with autism and their families are often so very involved in education, meetings, and special therapies that there is little time or energy left over for fun," said

Sue Murphy, coordinator of the program and director of adult services at Spurwink. "With winters being as long as they are in Maine, it only made sense to expand specialized services to the ski areas, and both Sugarloaf and now Mt. Abram have embraced the idea."

Specialists will be available at Mt. Abram on Sundays, beginning in January. The program charges an hourly fee, in addition to the lesson cost.

Spruce Point has applied for grant monies to help support the program. If awarded, scholarships may be available.

For more information, visit spurwink.org/sprucepoint/slopes.

Making the slopes family friendlier

To mark the new partnership between Spruce Point and Mt. Abram, the ski resort is offering a special package to two children and their families. The children will receive free lessons, lift tickets, and rentals and one-on-one sessions with a Spruce Point specialist on three Saturdays between Jan. 5 and the February school break.

Family members who would like to learn to ski may take advantage of a $49 learn-to-ski package. To encourage further participation in the sport for the remainder of the season, $20 lift tickets also will be offered to the child and family members.

ipating more inquiries and weddings," said Brad Jerome of the Bethel Inn. The inn and the Bethel area has grown into a premier wedding destination, offering a variety of unique ceremony and reception locations. We'll be looking to attract couples through regional advertising and events, while providing personalized service and wedding packages not easily found at other resorts.

At Sunday River, "We absolutely look forward to attracting more business, both destination and wedding-related, as a result of the same-sex marriage law passing," said Spokesman Darcy Morse. "We currently host an annual GLTBQ-friendly weekend in February (White Out Weekend) and know that the potential to grow this market is there."

Wedding photographer Carol Savage of Greenwood also hopes to benefit. "I'm looking forward and hoping it will generate more weddings," she said. "I just had a gay wedding a couple of weeks ago in New Hampshire."

From photographer Andree Kehn: "I am thrilled to be able to appeal to an entire new target market. gay and lesbian couples will bring a boost to local economies, especially destination locations, like Bethel."

A couple's perspective
The Citizen was contacted through e-mail last week by Jesse Keith of Marshwood, Mass. He offered the following perspective on wedding resources in the Bethel area:

My husband Peter and I were recently married on Oct. 6 in a legal ceremony just after midnight in Boston, and then we drove to Maine for a formal ceremony with our friends and family on the Artists Covered Bridge.

When planning our wedding, we knew from the start that we wanted to have our wedding in Maine with a reception at my in-laws vacation home in Bethel.

In our planning process we had some ups and downs finding the right vendors for our wedding when vendors learned we were a gay couple, but in the end we assembled a group of the most supportive, hard working and gay marriage-friendly vendors to execute the details of our wedding perfectly."

Keith said they utilized services from four local businesses, including Kehn and florist Pooh Corner Farm.

He concluded, "I was so pleased to see Maine pass gay marriage for all the couples in Maine that are looking to marry, and for any out of state gay couples like us to be able to have the freedom to choose to marry in a beautiful state that supports our rights."

clude a boiler. But they decided in the end to go with a recommendation to the voters for the loan approval they had in hand.

The new loan proposal must be submitted in December, Murphy said, but "we're not asking for a commitment."

He said the proposal would likely be an amount greater than what would be needed to complete the project, to be sure enough funding would be available. But only the funds needed would be used.

Directors voted unanimously in favor of the plan.

Like the loan approved Nov. 6, the interest rate would be very close to 0 percent, Murphy said.

In other business at last week's meeting:

* The board approved First Readings of proposed new or amended policies for the district. Among the topics addressed were home schooling; distribution of non-school materials; supplemental instructional materials; report cards/student progress; private students' eligibility (for co- and extra-curricular activities and interscholastic sports); management of concussions and other head injuries; and employee use of cell phones and computers. The policy on distribution of non-school materials would prevent the distribution of material (other than by a principal) that is not directly related to activities happening in SAD 44, Murphy said. Until now, non-profit organizations, such as summer camps, have asked to have their information sent home with students, he said. The concussion policy would better define required training for sports staff as well as procedures following a concussion incident, he said.

* Directors approved an updated K-8 mathematics curriculum.

* Murphy told the board a new sound system, funded through a $50,000 anonymous donation, is now in place in the Telstar auditorium. "It's a huge improvement," he said.

* Under personnel appointments, James Rose was approved as a half-time math teacher at Telstar High School; Ann Costa as AES basketball coach; Karen Wilson as WES Nordic ski coach; John Eliot as THS alpine ski coach; Sarah Southam as THS Nordic ski coach; Mark Thurlow as THS head boys basketball coach; Sean Caddigan as THS assistant boys basketball coach; Brian Mills as THS head girls basketball coach; and Scott Haines as THS assistant girls basketball coach. Murphy also informed the board of the resignations of Tracy Morin as TMS Grade 7 Math Teacher and school bus drivers Scott Bouchard and John White.

Rec coach asks why he can't coach in SAD 44

Under "Citizen Comments" at the beginning of the School Board meeting, directors heard from recreational basketball coach Michael Pelletier of Bethel, who was accompanied to the meeting by about 20 parents and community members.

Pelletier read a letter, to the board questioning why, in his words, he had been "encouraged not to apply" for coaching positions in the district.

"I have been coaching most of the present girl basketball players for the past seven years through travel teams and Rec. basketball," he said. "... In the past I have expressed to administration my desire to be involved in basketball when there were open positions. In fact there have been numerous times when they couldn't find a coach at all. I was encouraged not to apply, and told that if I did I wouldn't be hired.

"This year parents came to me and asked if they could get administration's approval for me to be a volunteer with the high school girls' basketball program, would I be interested? I said yes. They went to the principal, the principal went to the superintendent, the superintendent said I am not allowed to volunteer at Telstar."

Pelletier said as a Rec coach, he has built participation in elementary basketball in recent years, quadrupling the numbers.

The practices and games have taken place at Crescent Park or Telstar, and he has also coached recreational baseball with games and practices at Telstar or Gould Academy, he said.

He said that being denied the chance to help with Telstar basketball "feels like discrimination toward me as a volunteer ... My hope in sharing this with the board is that I will receive some clarification at a later date as to the inconsistencies in this matter."

When Pelletier finished, board Vice Chair Marcel Polak of Woodstock, who chaired the meeting, said he would allow general comments from the audience, but "we're not going to have a conversation in public."

Parent Loretta Holt spoke in support of Pelletier, saying he had coached her daughter on a travel team and that she trusted and admired him.

No other audience members spoke.

Polak asked Pelletier for a copy of his remarks, and the board moved on to other business. Murphy said he would not comment.

Pelletier, contacted later, said he did not wish to elaborate on the issue.

Bethel selectmen OK Bingham plan

BETHEL—Bethel selectmen Monday approved the Bingham Forest Management Plan that was presented to them earlier this month. The approval is contingent on pending approval of a timber management plan. The board also discussed the need to determine whether a committee slated to oversee the forest in the future will include a voting member from the Bethel Water District, which formerly owned the 2,300-acre parcel. In other business, the board approved the National Incident Management System as the basis for incident management in Bethel, after hearing a presentation from Fire Chief Mike Jodrey; designated property inside the existing fence at the Bethel Airport as available for aviation use, to ensure there will be no problem with eligibility for federal funds for future improvements; renewed the West Bethel Children's Center lease for five years; received an update on future waste water treatment projects; and scheduled a special board meeting for Dec. 3 to award a bid to harvest timber on the town forest (located on Mt. Will).

Bethel

By NANCY BROWN

It's beginning to look like Christmas in Bethel. Wreaths are hung on the lamp posts and Christmas trees are up on the Common and in the field on Lower Main Street. Christmas lights are already on at Ruthie's and Maine Line Products on Main Street. Country Christmas in Bethel begins this weekend and goes through Christmas. Events kick off on Friday, Nov. 23, with the Local Craft and Wares Fair at the Bethel Inn Resorts Conference Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. A complete list of Country Christmas events is on the Chamber website at www.bethel-maine.com or here in the Citizen. Don't miss one of my favorite events: Every Saturday from now until Christmas there will be wagon rides around Bethel from 1 to 3 p.m. You can catch the wagon across from the Common next to the Chapman Inn.

The Christmas trees have arrived at Lowell's Saw Shop on Route 26 across from Telstar. Proceeds from tree sales go to help GreenStock Snowsports Snowmobile Club with trail grooming expenses. The club maintains and grooms a network of more than 70 miles of trails and oversees the maintenance and grooming of an additional 30 miles of trails in Bethel. Each year the club sells about 300 trees. The shop will be open for tree sales

Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 12 noon to 4:30 p.m.

The Senior College Players have been practicing all month for their two upcoming Christmas plays: "Memories of a Wonderful Life" and "A Child's Christmas in Wales." Audience members will have a chance to join the cast on stage or just join them in song. The plays will be presented on Friday, Dec. 7, at 7 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 8, at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the Moses Mason House, 14 Broad Street in Bethel. Admission is free. However, donations will be accepted to help with the royalty fees.

The monthly hymn sing at the Pinhook Meeting House on Route 232 in Woodstock will take place on Friday, Nov. 23, from 7 to 8 p.m., followed by refreshments. The Meeting House Memorial Christmas Tree will be lit during the hymn sing. Everyone is welcome.

East Bethel

By WALLY RITZ

Things have been quiet around here and with the early deadline, I haven't been able to get a hold of many folks. Do have some news to share, though. Jason Coolidge had a successful hunting season by getting an eight-point buck. Congratulations, Jason.

Bettyann Hastings underwent cataract surgery and is amazed how everything is so nice and bright, and especially to be able to see color again.

Roger Zimmerman told me that their daughter Heather is home for a while now after having spent two years in India. She enjoyed her time there very much.

Alder River Grange on Nov. 10 hosted a turkey supper with nine veterans getting a free supper. There was a good turnout for the supper. The Grange will have a supper in the spring and another turkey supper in the fall. Thanks to all who came.

It is hard to believe that this week is Thanksgiving already. I will spend mine here with my kids and grand-kids. I can't wait to hear and report about all the family gatherings and celebrations. So, please, call me at 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net. You can also stop by and see me at the InnSide Shop. I will make sure to have paper and pen ready, plus you may be surprised to see all the nice, unusual items we have there.

Now on to the answer to the Trivia: In the April 27, 1880 Oxford Democrat Abiel Chandler reported the following. "Everybody is on the qui vive for a railroad from Bethel to Andover. the Intervale, crossing the river at Hemlock Island into the town of Hanover, thence down the river on the west side through Hanover village, then up Ellis River on the west side to Andover Corner, thence up Sawyer's Brook to Lake Umbagog. This is claimed to be the most feasible route, being some two miles nearer than from Bryant Pond to Andover. The distinguishing feature of this route is the ever-varying and attractive intervals along the Androscoggin. The whole route is a region of productive intervals farms, mountains and rivers. As we all know, this never materialized but some land was bought to start. It sounds pretty good though and would love to hear your thoughts on this. I wish you all a very Happy Thanksgiving and those traveling, have a safe trip.

Locke's Mills

By BETSEY FOSTER

Things have been very quiet within Greenwood government since the election. Selectmen held a public hearing on the renewal of the liquor license for Mt. Abram, and that went well and the permits were renewed. The Planning Board has been working with the Bartletts who hope to reopen Round Pond Store. Between the national election and the holidays, there probably won't be much happening between now and Jan. 1. That is likely a good thing with all the animosity of presidential election. Time we all lightened up for a while.

Suzanne and Brian Dunham, owners of Dunham Farm, have expanded the availability of their gluten-free products. The Good Food Store in Bethel is selling their frozen pizza crusts and loaf bread as well as some of their baked goods. Pat's Pizza in Bethel is offering gluten-free wraps, and they are the ones the Dunhams make.

The annual Crafts and Wares Fair will be held at the Bethel Inn Conference Center this Friday, Nov. 23, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It seems there is always a new local vendor who shows up each year and has something I need. A good example is the deer-horn door knobs made by Jerr-old Mason in West Paris. I bought one there and then went to his shop to acquire a few more. Of course, that ended up with a long chat about all kinds of things. Check out this craft fair. You never know where it will take you.

The end of the day this Saturday marks the end of deer hunting season. Guess we can put away that high-fashion fluorescent orange garb for another year.

There will be an after-Thanksgiving public supper here in town at the Legion Hall on the Gore Road Saturday, Nov. 24, 5 p.m., beans, chop suey, and the works. Proceeds will go to benefit the Greenwood Fire Department and Legion Auxiliary.

The stillness of winter is creeping in with ice on the pond. The skimming of ice that was forming every night has now become a constant. It remains throughout the day and thickens each night. It is creeping out from the coves and into the main part of Round Pond. It will be quite a while yet before it thickens to safety but the waters are quieting.

Every year I collect winterberries for a greens display on the porch, and it is always a race between myself and the birds as to who gets the easily accessible ones first. This year the birds won. A flock of late-season robins flew in and stripped the berries of the bushes in no time flat. I found others but not right out the front door.

Winterberries, Ilex verticillata, are a shrub that grows in wet areas and along our ponds. Our generally acid soil is what they like. Winterberries grow from a few feet tall to 15 feet high and can form dense stands. They shed their leaves in the fall and that makes the bright red berries stand out. I see them, the birds see them, and the race is on. While I like them for my greens display on the porch, if push came to shove, I'd rather the birds had the berries for food. Of course, the mice and squirrels have eaten the berries in my display before winter is half over.

And, speaking of winter, I notice that NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association) has modified its extended outlook for this winter. A few months back, they were predicting a below-average snowfall for New England. Now they have revised it to "an equal chance of below, above, or normal precipitation" for us. As a wise friend of mine translated this, "That means they don't know any better than the rest of us what will happen." Yup. Wait and see. You can send news to 3taichi6@gmail.com lines sure is a plus. Especially once hunting season hit. When Man goes into the woods, the deer come out. We have seen and enjoyed seeing, so very many deer and other wildlife as of late. The large flock of turkeys loiter in the local fields. They have been spotted in Uncle Bill's field, Grandpa Owen's fields and down the valley as far as what used to be Uncle Paul's house and lawn. They almost seem to flaunt their freedom. By flaunt, I meant, that they boldly encroach upon us humans, scratching and pecking, foraging themselves down our driveway and visiting with Vanity - so very close. Closer to humans than at any other time of the year and hello, this is when we all look at a turkey and our mouths water. Are they crazy? No, they flaunt because they can, because they know that they are safe from harm, from bullets and bows and dinner tables. Boy, the Pilgrims and "Indians" would scratch their heads at our hunting rules and regs, wouldn't they?

The flip side, however, is that we ARE thankful that we do get to observe nature in its wildest and truest forms, however, whenever and wherever they may be. I have also found myself and others enjoying the valley without its crown of fall splendor, leaves cast down, bare trees stark against their background. It is enjoyable to be able to observe the lay of the land, to actually SEE the woods through the trees - makes me want to walk all over this beautiful valley of ours. To discover the rocky, tumble downs and crags that were hidden all season long, to discover a wandering stream and dropping waterfall that you'd swear wasn't there before. The valley here has many secrets just waiting to be shared.

However, it is worth noting this: the sun sets much earlier and faster here. The kiddos and I were across the road visiting with Chris and Sarah and their son Nate. They were home for a few days to celebrate Thanksgiving with Aunt Susie. We chose to play over there, rather than at our house because the fields were still basked in the warmth of the sun. While we were standing there, at 2:30 in the afternoon, we watched the sun retreat behind the mountain line. The shadow that followed chased the sun across the field and rapidly caught up and engulfed its last moments of warmth and light. We were left standing there shivering in awe and disbelief. The kiddos still ran and laughed, chasing and tackled seemingly unaffected. The sun set on our little piece of the valley that afternoon at 2:31.

With winter fast approaching we can think of so very much to be thankful for, can't we? While the true meaning of Thanksgiving may be lost within the hustle and bustle of travel and cooking, cleaning and sleeping like a bear after the feast, let us not lose sight of the 10,000 reasons that we have to be thankful for. Have a blessed week!

Saturday, Dec. 1, at 6 p.m. in the school building, are the time and place for the annual Upton Community Christmas Party. My sister, Kathy, claims that she knows what the special gifts contain, but she wouldn't tell me.

The State Line Snowmobile Club is scheduled to meet Saturday, Dec. 1, at 9 a.m. in the Upton House.

The Upton Selectmen will meet Tuesday, Dec. 11, in the town office.

I am not sure how accurate the thermometer is in the field office in Troy, Vt., Tuesday, last week, at about daylight, it read 8 degrees and Wednesday, 5 degrees.

Happy Thanksgiving Day to everyone.

A SPECIAL GIFT TO CHRISTMAS FOR CHILDREN-Each year the Bethel Rotary Club provides assistance during the holiday season to families who live in the SAD 44 area. The kick off to this season's fundraiser brought a pleasant surprise from Chase Ormiston, a fourth-grader at Crescent Park School, and daughter of Todd and Elizabeth Ormiston. She recently celebrated her 10th birthday, and in place of the usual party gifts, she asked for donations to Christmas for Children. She and the 13 kids who attended her birthday party raised $202.03. Here Chase presents the donations to Rotarian Kevin Finley. More on Christmas for Children: Most are familiar with Rotarians collecting donations at the Bethel Shop n Save on Saturdays between now and the holidays, which will soon begin. Donations can also be made by mail. Please send to: Bethel Rotary Club, Christmas for Children, P. O. Box 171, Bethel, ME 04217. Families seeking holiday assistance can send a request to the same address. Families must reside in the SAD 44 area, and requests must be made by parents or legal guardians of children up to and including high school age. Please include a telephone number, email address (if available) and mailing address.

Happy Thanksgiving to all! I hope everyone enjoys their holiday.

My brother, Steve McLain, was at the house last Saturday and while he was there our neighbor, Brandon McLean, stopped by with his grandmother, Linda Taylor. Brandon was collecting food for the food pantry for the Boy Scouts, so we all donated.

Steve and Lise McLain attended the senior dinner at Telstar on Sunday, Nov. 18th. They said the food was delicious as always.

Lise McLain visited with her father, Gerard Dupont, at Ledgeview, and celebrated his 87th birthday with cake and ice cream. She also attended the Senior Club dinner at the Locke Mills Legion Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 14. Her son, Joey McLain, donated to the Senior Club an oil painting that he painted as a fundraiser. The drawing took place on that day and sold tickets were placed in a large, brown, paper bag where Carol Campbell from West Bethel was given the honors to pick out a ticket. Evan McLain, who is the grandson of Steve and Lise McLain, won the painting that his Uncle Joey painted and donated. Sales from the tickets sold amounted to $169. The painting will be mailed to Evan McLain who currently lives in the country of Norway. A special thank you goes out to Joey McLain for his kind contribution to the Senior Club.

Congratulations go out to Lise McLain's nephew, Representative Jarrod Crockett, for winning his third term in the Maine House of Representatives.

Hugh and I went to Gorham, N.H., last Saturday to check out a couple of craft fairs. Mary Tyler was set up at the one at the American Legion. After checking things out there, we went to Ed Fenn School and found some interesting crafts there. Both places had tables with items that included jewelry, knitted items, hand-crafted wooden items, handmade candles, Christmas wreaths, and food. We picked up a couple of gifts and of course, we visited the food table.

Mary Tyler called last Sunday and reported that she had seen a Bald Eagle fly across her back yard. He came from the pines on the hill and flew across the gravel pit, traveling toward Wild River. Maybe he was expecting the fishing to be better in Wild River than the Androscoggin.

Mary also mentioned that she had seen a couple of what appeared to be juvenile Red-Winged Blackbirds. Hugh and I had seen two such similar birds just before she called and thought that was what they were. We have seen the Grackle again over the past few days. Usually by now these birds have left for the winter.

Last Saturday evening Hugh and I went to Tim and Michele's house for an early Thanksgiving Dinner. Michele and her crew, William, Annie, Ajay and Sidney, worked hard all day to produce the delicious dinner. Tim had to work all day but arrived home to help finish up and join everyone for dinner. Also attending were Michele's parents, Leo and Ann Croteau, Berlin, N.H. After dinner, we celebrated William and Annie's birthdays. William turned twelve years old on Nov. 6 and Annie will be ten years old on Nov. 30.

Thanksgiving 2012 is just about a matter of history. We hope everyone has a great meal and for those who use the time for hunting, good luck.

Saturday, Nov. 24 is the day for the Rumford Grange 115 to have their craft fair and food sale. The event begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 2 p.m. Area crafters will have their items available for sale. There will be food items to be purchased. At noon a lunch consisting of a choice of corn chowder, sandwiches, hamburgers and hot dogs may be purchased. The Grange Hall is located along US Route 2 in Rumford Center.

Last week it slipped my mind. We should have reported about Election Day that went on Nov. 6. It was a busy day with 15 people registering to vote for the first time, 78 percent of registered voters turned out to vote.

After many years as ballot clerks for the Republicans Paul Ramsey and Gordon Howe stepped aside because of illness. Laird Bean and John Booth replaced them. As usual, Hebert Adams and Donna Worcester held up the Democratic side. Kelly Harrington was the Election Clerk and Clem Worcester was the Election Warden. Because of the large amount of information to glean from the ballots it took until 9:30 p.m. to complete tabulations. The election staff was treated to a chicken pie made by Donna Worcester for lunch. Later an evening meal was sent in from a local eatery.

We have been having warm fall days and cold nights with temperatures dipping into the teens.

Are you having special guests for the holidays? How about a trip for shopping? Are your hunting excursions fruitful? Let me know! viewpoint@roadrunner.com

My streak of bad luck continued last week. Not too serious this time, though. It happened at Friday night pizza. When we walked in to the restaurant, we found three of the guys I spent a week camping and fishing with two summers ago at Ray Cooley's camp on Loon Lake, sitting at a corner table with their wives. After a couple minutes of chit-chat and a little needling, Mona and I sat at a nearby table. I ordered a small pizza, while Mona ordered a salad. We sat there about 30 minutes, waiting for our order, when our waitress brought coffee and apologized because they couldn't find my pizza in the kitchen! She said they made another pizza, and were just putting it in the oven, and therefore, my coffee was on the house. A short time later my buddies from the corner table, Gary, Arthur and Dickie finished eating and got up to leave. I laughed and said to them, "I can't believe they lost my pizza!" Dickie said, "I know. I just ate it!" "What? You ate my pizza?" He said, "Yup. I ordered a sausage and mushroom, and they brought me sausage and pepperoni. So I ate it!" "I can't believe you did that!"

The Town of Andover is taking applications for On-Call Transfer Station help to fill in when the regular attendants are out. If you are interested, applications are available at the Town Office. The Town would like to thank Kayla Morton who has been an On-call attendant for the past couple of years. Mona White, Skip Sylvester and Dale Richards are doing a great job at keeping the Transfer Station orderly and cost-efficient. Please plan on recycling wrapping paper and packaging material this holiday season. Every time YOU recycle, you SAVE taxpayer dollars.

The Town Budget Committee meetings are being held at the Andover Public Library on Monday evenings at 6 p.m. The meetings are open to the public. The group met on Monday evening, Nov. 19. Observing these meetings is a great way to learn about Town spending.

The Andover Withdrawal Committee gathers in the library at 6 p.m. through the winter. The group is working on the agreement to potentially withdraw from SAD 44 after our 44-year partnership. This will go to a final town vote sometime in the spring. Come to a meeting or check out the website at www.andover4kids.com.

The Town Office is looking for a great black and white photo or picture of Andover? If you have one and would like it to be considered for the annual Town Report cover, please contact the Town Office.

The Andover Food Pantry was a beehive of activity on Thursday and Friday, as many volunteers including the Service Circle packed 32 Thanksgiving baskets and delivered them to those unable to come to the CEB. Thanks to the many helpers who made the work much easier this year. The Christmas Star program for Christmas gifts for our children will get underway shortly. Simply take a yellow star from the wreath which will be in the Little Red Hen, buy the gift and return it to give a child a happier Christmas morning.

Life is a journey of learning. This week I learned through letters to the editor and responses that sometimes people do not understand what you are saying or interpret it as something else. The letters were not criticism of my opponent nor "sour grape" statements because I lost the election. Rather they were written to draw attention to the influence money has in our election process which was limited the number of people willing to be candidates. I learned that there is support out there for my position and that the general public is appalled by the amount of money spent in the recent election. If you want to learn something, I encourage you to go to www.maine.gov/ethics where you can look up a list of statewide candidates and their expenditures. You will surely learn something!

Turkey day is upon us. Try and not eat too much. I am trying for Turkey Tuesday, also, but it is questionable if we will make it there. For now I go one day at a time.

Thanks for everyone's concern about my health. I am positive about the future now that I know what is wrong. Ginger tea and other ginger items help me get through the day. Eating frequently helps, too. The carrot ginger soup at the Coop dinner was great! I shall get the recipe from Julia. Soon I may even feel more like cooking. Of course we have to cook a turkey for Thanksgiving, but that doesn't count. It is easy once you have done it once. Not so my first turkey. I knew nothing about what to do and had to call my mom and ask her. I was 19 or 20 and cooked primarily vegetarian, so a turkey was unknown. I got through it and it was good. Now I am working on a cornbread stuffing from scratch to avoid gluten and sweets too. No desserts for me this year. Sugar is off my diet. If I eat enough turkey and fixings, my thinking is I won't need dessert. We shall see. Ask me next time you see me.

Thursday, Nov. 22, there will be NO ACOA. It is Thanksgiving.

Thursday there will be a Community Thanksgiving at noon at the St. Catherine of Sienna Church on Paris Street in Norway. The dinner is sponsored by St. Catherine of Sienna and Christ Episcopal Churches. Reservations recommended. Call 743-2606.

Friday, the 23rd, is Black Friday. There is a local craft and wares sale at the Bethel Inn Conference Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be local crafts, horse rides, etc. It is sponsored by Oxford Networks. FMI please call 824-1181.

Saturday, Nov. 24, 9 to noon in Norway there will be a wreath sale at the Second Congregational Church on Main Street. Money will benefit the church missions. FMI please call 743-2290.

Sunday, Dec. 2, there will be the Rotary Breakfast at Gould Academy Ordway Dining Hall from 7:30 to 11 a.m. Tickets are on sale from Rotary members and at We've Got the Look, Route 26, Locke's Mills (875-2887). FMI or tickets please call Ellie at 592-9614.

Dec. 8 Fare Share will hold a Fundraising Supper and Silent Auction at the Commons. Stay tuned for more info.

That is all for this week. Have a great holiday and do not eat too much.

HORSE TAILS by HORSES in HARNESS

Illustrated By JEWEL L. CLARK
Written By PATRICIA PROBERT GOTT

PATRICIA PROBERT GOTT, a local author who resides in South Paris, has recently released her 13th book "Horse Tails by Horses in Harness. In this children's book, recommended for 11 and under, a young colt named Clyde has just separated from his mum who had told him he'd be a working harness horse some day. He wonders what kind of horse he is and what he will be doing when he grows up so he interviews 13 various breeds of horses of all sizes, shapes, and colors, from Mini's to Standardbreds to Clydesdales, trying to find out. The illustrations were drawn by artist, singer, songwriter, Jewel L. Clark from Bethel. The cover depicts two Hafflinger horses, Buddy and Nick, owned by Lance Bean, Woodstock. Gott began riding at the age of eight and has owned, raised, and trained horses ever since, accounting for her knowledge and experience with horses as detailed in her previous cowgirl series books and her four children's horse stories. She was also a horse wrangler in Wyoming and currently owns two Arabians which she uses for trail riding. Patricia is available for speaking engagements or reading to groups (743-2628 or email pgott@gwi.net). Her books can be purchased from www.prgott-books.net, locally at Book's 'N Things Norway or Smedburg's Farm Stand in Oxford, or from Amazon.com.

Backyard reflections

Unveiling the Weasel
Why is that in our culture we attribute dubious qualities to animals that are predators?

As a naturalist I have spent a lot of time thinking about this question and have reached the conclusion that unconsciously, at least, humans remain very much identified with animals in the natural world, for good or ill.

Take the weasel. Recently, when someone made a derogatory remark about someone "acting like a weasel," I asked if that person knew anything about weasels in the wild. "Of course not, what have weasels got to do with it?" my friend responded with annoyance.

Later that afternoon I was standing at the window looking down at the brook when a mottled tube-like creature streaked by like lightning, vanishing into one of my brush piles. Instantly I was on high alert, grabbing my binoculars. "What else could move that fast besides a weasel?" I asked myself as I fastened my eyes on the spot into which this amazingly agile creature had disappeared.

Sure enough, within moments, an animal with a diminutive wedge-shaped chestnut colored head, small rounded ears, and two beady eyes peered out at me from the pile of sticks. He appeared to be as curious about me as I was about him.

It had been a number of years since I had seen a weasel in this area, and in the interim I had been overrun by voles and mice.

The return of this most efficient predator might help redress the imbalance created by his absence. As I watched him he suddenly popped out of his hiding place, creating a sinuous wave - like pattern with his two-toned body as he raced across the dead grass to sink his sharp pointed white teeth into a mouse. With his prey hanging limp from his mouth, I guessed the weasel's lethal bite had killed the rodent instantly. I gazed in awe as the weasel spun around reversing directions in an instant; in seconds he had slipped back into the brush.

Because I knew something of the natural history of the weasel I was delighted to see him, because I needed help with the voles. His mottled appearance indicated that he was in transition and still wearing parts of his mole brown coat. Like the snowshoe hare he would eventually turn pure almost white. In two species the weasel keeps his black tail. Science speculates that one reason for this autumn change might be to help the weasel evade predators. White fur may also help a weasel hunt at the edge of snow covered fields.

This ability to change colors with the seasons had intrigued me ever since a weasel first befriended me.

Two decades ago, a scruffy, two-toned weasel appeared from under the well house just outside the window of the place I was renting. Encouraged by regular sightings, I decided that I would try to feed him as a way to express my appreciation, and also to keep the weasel around so I could learn more about him. (Note: At that time wildlife agencies did not widely publicize the recommendation against feeding wild animals, as they do now. I do not recommend feeding today.)

Whenever I caught a glimpse of my friend I would leave tiny bits of chicken at the well house, and by late October I was meeting with him on a daily basis.

Although initially shy, soon my weasel began popping his head out whenever I called him and it was in this manner that I was able to witness "Whiskers" transformation from weasel to ermine.

By December his shiny fur coat had turned a creamy white although he retained his black tail. I continued to feed him all winter and by early spring he would take chicken from my hand.

I was eagerly looking forward to the day when he would begin to change back into his summer attire. One March afternoon, out of the blue, a one-eared bobcat appeared sniffing and skulking around the entrance to the snow tunnel that Whiskers used whenever I called him from the well house.

Alarmed, I feared the worst, and three days later he disappeared, never to return.

I had developed love and respect for Whiskers, whose obvious intelligence captivated me. I was also astounded by the weasel's willingness to befriend a species that often hunted weasels for skins.

Must animals that are hunted by people to develop a fear of humans in order to survive, I wondered? From what I have learned many creatures in the wild seem to rely more on cooperation than competition to survive, and some, like my weasel, even appear to be interested in developing relationships.

Because I am a woman with Native American roots who has learned the myths and culture of tribal peoples, I know that the skins of the weasel are still used to adorn ceremonial dress because they are considered to be "power" animals.

To wear the skins of any animal is to ask the spirit of that animal to become one with the wearer. And from the Native perspective, to take the life of a weasel or any animal without understanding that the animal in question is offering itself as a "gift," is to destroy the reciprocal nature of the relationship between humans and animals.

For Native Americans the weasel embodies great intelligence and cunning, as well as the ability to kill swiftly and mercifully, all positive qualities from my point of view.

Perhaps we should pay more attention to the animals we use to describe human behavior, so that we may see them for who they are.

More about weasels
Weasels belong to the family Mustelidae; some of their closest relatives are mink, fishers, river otters and wolverines.

Their long slim bodies allow them to hunt prey (mice, snakes, frogs, chipmunks) in tight places like in between the cracks of stone walls or foundations, and they can climb trees to raid the nests of birds.

Lining their dens with bits of fur and feathers helps insulate them from the cold when they are resting, but they are active all winter, often tunneling under the snow. Weasels give birth in the early spring after breeding during June and July of the previous summer.

Although the gestation period lasts nine months, the eggs do most of their developing in the last two months of pregnancy as long as the female is healthy. The mother will care for her young for approximately two months.

If badly frightened, weasels will exude a foul smelling musk. In the wild, weasels will live about five years.

Sara Wright of Woodstock is a naturalist and in the past worked as a wildlife rehabilitator. She has researched and written about animals and plants in the wild for many years. She gives presentations on how to become a naturalist, as well as on Native American Culture and the use of Indigenous medicinal plants. WMSC Players Christmas gift to community

"Come sing, join us on stage - but only if you like - and celebrate the holidays with us," offers Lynn Arizzi, Director, Senior College Players. Two holiday favorites will be featured as a Christmas gift to the community on Friday, Dec. 7, at 7 p.m. and on Saturday, Dec. 8, at 1 p.m. and at 7 p.m. at the Mason House Exhibit Hall, 14 Broad Street, Bethel. This holiday special, an audience-participation event, promises to be fun and enjoyable for both the Players and the audience.

The Mason House will be in full holiday décor for these performances.

"A Child's Christmas I Wales" by Dylan Thomas, one of the featured plays, will be a sparkling rendition of this classic. Performers will read and act, and invite the audience to join them in song.

"Memories of a Wonderful Life," by Jonathan M. Zaley, is a Christmas comedy that puts an audience-friendly twist on a holiday classic.

Arizzi said, "If you recall the movie, 'It's a Wonderful Life,' you'll love this play." Performers will take the audience through the story with all its famous characters including George Bailey, Mr. Gower, Clarence the Angel, Mary, Mr. Potter, Uncle Billy, Zuzu, Bert the cop, Ernie the taxi cab driver, and even God played as Joseph. Arizzi added, "We will need audience help to play all the characters. We will give you the lines so you can join in the fun."

Senior College Players will be performing interchanging roles in the three performances and include Barb Dion, Leigh Dickinson, Mary-Ellen Gartner, Peter Gartner, Lorrie Hoeh, Dan Johnson, Laura Johnson, Jim McLean, Tineke Ouwinga, Roberta Taylor and Rosabelle Tiff.

Senior College Players is offered as a course sponsored by Western Mountaintains Senior College.

The public is invited to the performances and admission is free.

However, donations will be accepted to offset royalty fees. For more information, contact Lynn Arizzi at 824-0080.

Holiday offerings at BHS

With the holiday season here, the Bethel Historical Society is once again offering, for a limited time, a 20 percent discount on all regularly priced items in its Museum Shop. Starting on Nov. 23 and continuing through the entire month of December, prices will be slashed on items inspired by the society's museum and research library collections, as well as books, gifts, and special publications associated with past and current exhibits at the society's Regional History Center.

As visitors will discover, many of the books currently in stock relate to the history of area towns, logging and lumbering, architecture, decorative arts, Native Americans, the White Mountains, railroads, the Civil War, art, and crafts. Among the gift offerings are White Mountain note cards; DVDs and CDs; maps; postcards; cross-stitch kits (including a reproduction of an 1841 sampler in the society's collection); children's activity books, old-fashioned folk toys and Roy-Toy log building sets; Sunday River covered bridge mouse pads, note cards, pins and magnets; boxed Maine mineral collections; folk art paintings, prints and silhouettes in the style of Rufus Porter; paintings by local artists; and craft work by local artisans.

The special 20-percent discount applies to in-store sales as well as on-line purchases and is available to both members and non-members. (Regular member discount does not apply during this period only.)

The Museum Shop, located in the Robinson House, 10 Broad Street, is open Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910 or visit the society's website at www.bethelhistorical.org.

On Saturday, Dec. 1, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., the Bethel Historical Society will present "Christmas at the Mason House." Each year, the society celebrates the holiday season by decorating the first floor period rooms in the 1813 Dr. Moses Mason House as they might have appeared just before the Civil War.

This is also the only time of the year when guests can view the mid-nineteenth century room settings by candlelight.

Live music and seasonal refreshments will be featured during the two-hour open house, which is free to the public (donations welcomed).

At 5:30 p.m., BHS volunteers are invited to gather in the Mason House exhibit hall for refreshments and the annual presentation of the Marjorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award.

Mundt-Allen Post meets

Mundt-Allen Unit 81 A.L.A. met Nov. 12 for a potluck supper followed by a meeting of members. Commander Robert Everett called Auxiliary members into the Legion meeting room for a special announcement. There Commander Everett presented Certificates of Appreciation from the State of Maine to Post 81 Legion members for honorable service during the Korean War. Certificates were presented to Nesta Littlefield on behalf of her late husband Cpl. James R. Littlefield; Fumi Head on behalf of her late husband, Cpl. John B. Head. Cpl. Elmer "Sonny" Bean was unable to attend and will receive his Certificate of Appreciation for his service in Korea at a later date.

The next meeting will be Dec. 11 at the Legion Hall with a Christmas theme. The Post will cater a supper at 6 p.m. with a short meeting and good fellowship to follow. The Auxiliary will be raffling a basket of "Goodies." Legion and Auxiliary members are encouraged to attend and join the fun.

Legion and Auxiliary meetings are held the second Tuesday of the month at 6 p.m. (potluck supper with meeting to follow.)

Oxford County Domestic Violence Task Force

From OGDVTF:

Am I all alone?

I am sharing this in the hopes that with my struggles being overcome it will show that there is hope and light at the end of the tunnel for others who have suffered. In all honesty, I am uncertain the best way to begin but I know it should be from the start. While I have reached a point where discussing what happened is easier I feel that rather than going into full detail, I will give a basic idea of the things I have struggled with over the 40-plus years of my life.

When I was young, that was when the abuse first began; it ranged from the physical, verbal and continued into the sexual. Not only was I victimized in this manner, but I also was abducted and spent a measure of time filled with terror and uncertainty. I was traumatized to a point where even when I was free from those that abused me, I found myself getting involved with more people that would continue the cycle of abuse. Even then I went through more of those abuse forms, it felt hopeless. In some ways, I felt like I would never get out. There were times I feared death would come. The terror was so overwhelming, so much strength to it I was certain death was coming for me.

A year ago my life began to change because I was finally introduced to varying resources that were available. From private counseling to group counseling, there were programs also for survivors that taught me to look within and find my rock. The school my son goes to has several sources also that have been an immense help. My church family has helped me to regain spiritual strength. I also could not have started much of this path I now walk without the priceless support from the men and women of the Mexico Police Department who helped me to begin to feel safe.

But the biggest thing for me was when I totally surrendered everything I carried to God and told him that I trusted Him and I would let him carry me through. It was at this time that I had my healing truly and purely begin. And I praise God.

I just want everyone to know there is hope and there are resources out there that can help. If you are in a dangerous situation, there is hope. If you are being threatened, others' lives are being threatened; there are people out there that can help you.

You are not alone.

Some of these valued resources are: Safe Voices, Bridge to Success, Care and Comfort, Swift River Counseling, The School District, Tri-County Mental Health Services, Local Churches, Police Departments, REACH.

Don't hesitate if you find the need is there to reach out and save your life and the lives of others you love.

I praise God I am a Survivor, you can be too.

NORMA L. CROSS

Norma Cross died on Saturday, Nov. 10, 2012 at the Ledgeview Nursing Home in West Paris. She was born on July 3, 1928, the daughter of Edgar and Gladys Cross, and lived in the Bethel area for most of her life.

As a young adult, Norma developed a strong attachment to popular dance music and classic movies. Although she had a quiet demeanor, she had a wonderful sense of humor and contagious laugh, and family members recall her particular talent for telling scary stories.

Norma worked for many small businesses around Bethel, including Bethel Shoe, the Mica Shop, Favreau's Furniture, the Bethel Spa Motel, the Bethel Inn and NTL (National Training Labs). While working at the Bethel Inn in 1958, she befriended a southern woman from Alabama named Dora, back when a black person was a rare sight in Bethel, Maine. They remained friends and pen pals for many years, a true indicator of Norma's generous heart and open mind. Norma was also part of the family-based team (the Crosses) that operated Mt. Abram in its early years. In addition, she was in great demand as a babysitter. For many years, Norma babysat for a number of area families, including Albert and Norma Buck and the Hudsons (Dr. Hudson was the local veterinarian at that time), where she developed a knack for rounding up escaping cattle as well as children.

Norma enjoyed traveling and was thrilled to fly to California in 1968 with family members to visit an uncle. The highlight of the trip was going to a nightclub to see George Gobel, a well-known comedian and actor. Norma loved family get-togethers, especially picnics and camping, where she was known to carry a big stick to scare away the bears. She also loved anything red, chocolate or related to cats.

Norma fought a courageous 16-year battle with Alzheimers, spending her final years at the Ledgeview Nursing Home. She was predeceased by her parents as well as her brothers, Norton Cross, Donald Cross and Stuart Cross of Bethel, her niece, Patsy Cote of West Bethel, and her nephews, Studie Cross and Duane Cross of Bethel. She is survived by her daughter, Diane Cross of Bethel, her sister, Mary Cross Hester of Gilead, and her brother, Alton Cross of Bedford, Mass. She is also survived by her nieces, Dona Taylor of Gilead, Elaine Cross of Bethel and Wendy Cross of Bethel, her nephews, John Cross of Boston, Jack Cross of Bethel, Eric Kendall of Gilead, and Stephen Cross of Bethel, and numerous great-nieces and great-nephews.

Norma did not wish for a memorial service, but instead, she requested that her friends and family enjoy a picnic in her honor.

ANNIE E. HASTINGS

Annie (MacKinnon) Hastings, 91, of Bethel and beloved wife of the late Henry Hastings Jr., passed away Nov. 16, 2012.

She was born in Mexico, daughter of the late Colin and Lillian (Decker) MacKinnon. A graduate of Mexico High School (1938) and Rumford Nursing School (1944), she worked as an RN for Androscoggin Home Health, Dixfield Nursing Home, and Rumford Community Hospital. She was a homemaker for many years and worked in her husband's law firm.

Annie was a volunteer in many organizations over the years, including Bethel Historical Society, West Parish Congregational Church, Sunday School Teacher, Scouts, Sunday River Skiway, and the Masons. She was a member of the Eastern Star, Bethel Historical Society and the West Parish Congregational Church.

In 1968 at the age of 47, she suddenly became widowed. She went back to work, put her children through college, and lived a full, happy, and independent life. Over the years she took into her home her mother, her husband's aunt and her childhood friend Fred Hayden to care for.

Annie was a people person, and she enjoyed her many friends. She lived at 1 Main Street in Bethel for 64 years and enjoyed talking on her front lawn to passers-by. She loved her home and her simple, lovely flower garden on the front lawn as well as her mother's roses by the garage. She was very proud of her grandchildren Heather and Charlie and was most pleased to know of their upcoming college graduations - both with Master's degrees. Her adopted cat Enoch was a famous Bethel citizen for many years.

Annie is survived by her son, Stephen Hastings and his wife Rebecca of Norway; her grandchildren, Heather Hastings and Charles Hastings of Norway; her daughter, Cynthia Cox and her husband Graham of Perth, Scotland. She was predeceased by her siblings, Donald MacKinnon, Charles MacKinnon, Pearl Hutchinson.

Annie was residing at Norway Rehabilitation and Living Center for the past six months. She was most pleased that many of her friends came by to visit or sent cards and letters. Her 92nd birthday would have been on Thanksgiving this year, so in her memory please enjoy that time and the holidays with your families and friends.

A graveside service at Riverside Cemetery in Bethel will be announced in the spring.
